Plaintiffs and Counterdefendants,

v.

THE TRIZETTO GROUP, INC.
and COGNIZANT TECHNOLOGY
SOLUTIONS CORP.,

Defendants and Counterclaimants.

TRIZETTO CORPORATION & COGNIZANT TECHNOLOGY SOLUTIONS
CORPORATION’S ANSWER TO AMENDED COMPLAINT AND FIRST AMENDED COUNTERCLAIMS

Defendants TriZetto Corporation (“TriZetto”)¹ and Cognizant Technology Solutions Corporation (“Cognizant” and, together with TriZetto, “Defendants” or “Counterclaim Plaintiffs”), by and through their undersigned counsel, file this Answer to the Amended Complaint of Plaintiffs Syntel Sterling Best Shores Mauritius Limited, now known as Syntel Holding Mauritius Limited (“Syntel Mauritius”) and Syntel, Inc. (“Syntel, Inc.” and, together with Syntel Mauritius, “Syntel,” “Plaintiffs” or “Counterclaim Defendants”) and assert Counterclaims against Syntel.

¹ Syntel named The TriZetto Group, Inc. as a defendant. The TriZetto Group, Inc. is now known as TriZetto Corporation. For purposes of its Answer, TriZetto will assume that all references to “TriZetto” in the Complaint refer to TriZetto Corporation.

NATURE OF CLAIMS AND COUNTERCLAIMS

1. Syntel² filed this lawsuit as one part of its campaign to sabotage Cognizant and TriZetto in order to gain unlawful competitive advantages. Syntel Mauritius signed a Master Services Agreement (“MSA”) in which it promised to supply TriZetto with technical personnel to service TriZetto’s software products, including extensive customization for its clients’ needs. The MSA expressly anticipated that TriZetto could be acquired by a competitor of Syntel Mauritius, and permitted Syntel Mauritius to terminate the MSA if that occurred—but only if it continued to provide personnel “of the same quality, level of performance and scope as provided prior to termination” for two years. (MSA § 25.01(4).)

2. On November 20, 2014, Cognizant, a Syntel competitor, acquired TriZetto, as contemplated in the MSA. Syntel Mauritius terminated the MSA, as was its right under its terms. However, in the weeks leading up to the consummation of Cognizant’s acquisition of TriZetto and following the closing of the acquisition, Syntel has continually failed to meet its contractual obligations pursuant to the MSA. Rather than continuing to provide technical personnel to TriZetto for the required two years so that TriZetto could transition to another supplier in an orderly manner, Syntel opportunistically undertook to sabotage its competitor, Cognizant, not only by removing key personnel from important customer accounts, but also by stealing trade secrets (downloading hundreds of confidential key business documents), using those trade secrets to compete against Cognizant and TriZetto, and harassing Cognizant employees.

² Syntel, Inc. apparently operates through and with numerous subsidiaries and affiliates, including Syntel Mauritius. For ease of reference, Syntel Mauritius, as well as Syntel, Inc. and its other affiliates or entities, are referred to herein as “Syntel,” except where necessary to make a distinction.

3. During the term of the MSA and thereafter, Syntel engaged in a coordinated, systematic, willful and unlawful effort to abuse its access to TriZetto's restricted repositories of confidential, proprietary, trade secret, and copyrighted materials ("TriZetto's Intellectual Property"). Syntel personnel downloaded, used, copied, converted and stole TriZetto's Intellectual Property, which included TriZetto's most highly-sensitive confidential business documents and as well as proprietary software that was developed over many years and at substantial expense by TriZetto. Syntel knew that doing so was unlawful and a violation of its obligations not to use, copy, disseminate or reverse engineer TriZetto's Intellectual Property.

4. Through this pattern of misconduct, Syntel has seriously disrupted Cognizant and TriZetto's ability to service clients—causing them to miss key client deadlines and damaging client relationships. Syntel is also undertaking to steal client business from Cognizant and TriZetto—business for which it would otherwise not be in a position to even be considered because it lacks the expertise and experience—by using TriZetto's Intellectual Property that it illicitly obtained, retained, and used, and the damaged client relationships it caused.

5. This sabotage not only violates the MSA, it violates New York laws which prohibit breaches of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, the misappropriation of trade secrets, unfair competition, and tortious interference with business relations. It also violates federal copyright and the recently passed federal trade secret law. TriZetto and Cognizant bring those counterclaims below.

6. The claims of Syntel Mauritius, which initially commenced this lawsuit as a preemptive tactic, and Syntel, Inc. are utterly without merit. Syntel's primary claim is that Cognizant violated the MSA by hiring former employees of Syntel, Inc. and Syntel affiliates other than Syntel Mauritius, which Cognizant was required to do to defend itself from Syntel's sabotage and removal of key personnel. But the MSA does not prohibit hiring of non-Syntel Mauritius employees and, in any case, Cognizant is not a party to the MSA. Syntel knows its claim is without any basis because it tried to amend the MSA to include provisions that would apply to non-Syntel Mauritius employees and Cognizant, but such an amendment never occurred. Yet it brings that claim before this Court anyway.

7. That this and Syntel's other claims and allegations are devoid of merit is underscored by its wildly irresponsible demand for "punitive damages in an amount of a multiple of Cognizant's net worth, listed as $6,135,791,000 in Cognizant's most recent public financial statement." (Amended Complaint ¶ 28.) There is no legal or factual basis for such an allegation, which Syntel made up out of thin air and presented to this Court, solely for publicity purposes and its in terrorem effect on a competitor.

8. Syntel is engaged in a campaign to sabotage TriZetto and Cognizant and it should be stopped.

TriZetto's technology products, in combination with its consulting, IT and business process services, simplify the deployment and adoption of technology and improve healthcare operations.

47. Of particular importance, Facets™ is TriZetto's core software product geared specifically to health plan administration.

48. TriZetto also has a Consulting unit that services its products, providing the implementation necessary to allow clients to use the products seamlessly and interface with other software. Clients can hire TriZetto to customize its products for their individual systems and needs, a complex process that can take many months.

49. TriZetto also develops and uses TriZetto's Intellectual Property, which include essential, extremely valuable, confidential, and proprietary materials that aid in client-specific use and customization of TriZetto's Facets™ software. Such materials include manuals, guides, and software tools, including, but not limited to the following:

- Data Dictionary: An essential software program that provides a user interface and a comprehensive text description for each of myriad tables and fields in Facets™.
- Custom Code Impact Tool: Analytic software that can be run on custom code before upgrading a client's Facets™ software to identify specific portions of custom code that will be affected by the upgrade.
- Custom Code: TriZetto has over the course of many years created a vast repository of custom code that it developed in connection with client projects, which supplement the native Facets™ software and aid customers in performing particular tasks and interfacing with other software.
- TriZetto's manuals, documentation, user guides, automation scripts, test cases, and other material related to operating, customizing and testing the TriZetto software.

50. TriZetto's Intellectual Property includes materials that embody a series of original, creative choices, which feature unique or independently created expression, which is the product of discretion, skills, resources, and creative energies, which were developed over a number of years and at significant cost in terms of manpower, time, and expenditures. Therefore, these materials constitute copyrightable subject matter under the laws of the United States.

51. TriZetto owns valid and subsisting copyrights in certain of these materials, including the Data Dictionary software, Customer Code Impact Tool software, and "Best Practices in ICD-10 Configuration" and "Facets Roadmap Review" presentations, certain of the TriZetto manuals and user guides, and other materials, which TriZetto has applied to register with the Copyright Office, and the applications for which have been granted, refused, or are in process (the "Registration Works").

52. In addition to the work done by its full-time employees, TriZetto contracts out for personnel from multiple third-party vendors to meet its client needs. Pursuant to TriZetto's agreements with third-party vendors, TriZetto owns all work product that a third-party vendor develops in connection with performing the contracted services.

53. One such vendor was Syntel. In connection with its vendor services for TriZetto, Syntel gained access to TriZetto's Intellectual Property. During the MSA, Syntel abused its access, exceeded the scope of its authority, and improperly copied, downloaded, distributed, and used TriZetto's Intellectual Property. After Syntel ceased its vendor relationship with TriZetto, Syntel continued to wrongfully access, copy, and use TriZetto's Intellectual Property by abusing its relationship with TriZetto's clients that retained Syntel as a third-party servicer independent of TriZetto.

54. Upon information and belief, Syntel Mauritius is not registered to do business anywhere.

TriZetto And Syntel Mauritius Entered Into A Master Services Agreement

55. Effective June 30, 2010, TriZetto and Syntel Mauritius entered into the MSA, pursuant to which Syntel agreed to supply personnel to TriZetto to assist with software development, consulting, and other customer projects. The MSA was amended in 2012.

56. Provisions of the MSA include the following:

- Section 10.03(3) of the MSA requires Syntel to “only appoint [personnel] with suitable training, education, skills and experience for the position to which such individual is assigned.”
- Section 10.03(6) of the MSA requires Syntel to “conduct the replacement procedures . . . in such a manner so as to assure an orderly succession for the individuals . . . replaced.”
- Section 12.01(2) of the MSA states that “TriZetto shall own (a) any modifications, inventions, enhancements or derivations of TriZetto IP, developed, in whole or in part, pursuant to this Agreement by or on behalf of Service Provider, Service Provider Agents, Service Recipients or TriZetto Agents (‘Modified TriZetto IP’), (b) all TriZetto New IP and (c) all TriZetto Trademarks,” and that “TriZetto shall have all right, title and interest, including worldwide ownership of patent, copyright, trade secret and other proprietary rights in and to the Modified TriZetto IP and TriZetto New IP and all copies made from them.” Further, Syntel “irrevocably and perpetually assigns, transfers and conveys to TriZetto (and Service Provider shall, and shall cause the Affiliates of Service Provider, Service Provider Agents and members of the Service Delivery Organization to irrevocably and perpetually assign, transfer and convey to TriZetto) without further consideration all of its and their right, title and interest in and to such Modified TriZetto IP and TriZetto New IP, including all rights of patent, copyright, trade secret or other proprietary rights in and to such materials.”

- Section 1.01(90) of the MSA defines “Service Provider IP” as IP other than the IP that TriZetto owns pursuant to the MSA, and which was “developed by or on behalf of Service Provider prior to the Effective Date or outside the scope of this Agreement, or licensed from a third party (excluding IP licensed, leased or otherwise obtained from a Service Recipient or TriZetto Agents pursuant to this Agreement).”
- Section 12.03 of the MSA prohibited the parties from “decompil[ing], disassembl[ing] or reverse engineer[ing] any of the IP of the other party.”
- Section 19.01(1) of the MSA prohibits each party from using the other party’s “Confidential Information” for its own benefit. Section 1.01(13) of the MSA defines “Confidential Information” as “all information . . . and documentation of TriZetto and Service Provider, respectively, whether disclosed to or accessed by Service Provider or TriZetto, respectively, in connection with this Agreement, including “TriZetto IP” and TriZetto Data. “TriZetto IP” is defined as IP used in connection with the provision of the Services that is (a) owned, acquired or developed by or on behalf of any Service Recipient or (b) licensed, leased or otherwise obtained by any Service Recipient from a third party (excluding IP licensed, leased or otherwise obtained from Service Provider or Service Provider Agents pursuant to this Agreement) and used in connection with the provision of the Services” under Section 1.01(129) of the MSA. “TriZetto Data” is defined as “all data and information . . . to which Service Provider or Service Provider Agents have access in connection with the provision of the Services” under Section 1.01(125)) of the MSA.
- Section 21.02(2) of the MSA reinforces that Syntel shall “use adequate numbers of qualified individuals with suitable training, education, experience and skill to perform the Services” contracted for.

57. Additionally, the MSA expressly contemplated that TriZetto could be acquired by a competitor of Syntel. Section 23.02(3) of the MSA allows Syntel to terminate “[i]n the event of a TriZetto Change in Control, in each case in a transaction involving an entity listed on Exhibit 15.” Exhibit 15 to the MSA lists “Cognizant” among the “Change in Control Entities.” If Syntel elects to terminate the MSA, Section 25.01(1) of the MSA describes Syntel’s obligation to provide “Termination Assistance Services” during the Termination Assistance Period. Section 1.01(110) of the MSA defines “Termination Assistance Period” as beginning upon notice of the termination and “continuing for up to 24 months after such expiration or termination.” Section 25.01 (4) of the MSA further requires that Syntel’s “Termination Assistance Services shall be of the same quality, level of performance and scope as provided prior to termination, but not less than as required under this Agreement.”

58. In order to deliver its services to TriZetto under the MSA, Syntel assigns personnel to assist with TriZetto projects. Once assigned to TriZetto, Syntel personnel receive ongoing training from TriZetto regarding TriZetto’s products and develop knowledge and skills specific to those products (and, relatedly, to TriZetto’s clients’ use of the products). Syntel personnel also received access to TriZetto’s repositories of proprietary and confidential TriZetto Materials, including those housed on TriZetto’s restricted Customer Exchange system and Polytron Version Control System (“PVCS”).

59. The PVCS is one of TriZetto’s electronic file repositories, and is available only to TriZetto employees (including outsourced resources supplied by Syntel pursuant to the MSA). Access to the PVCS is strictly controlled. Users must submit specific requests to access documents or file locations, which are then reviewed by supervisors before being granted.

60. At all times, Syntel’s access to materials on TriZetto’s proprietary and confidential repositories, including Customer Exchange and PVCS, was subject to the MSA.

61. TriZetto’s Syntel staffers are a combination of “offshore” personnel, who work primarily from a facility in Pune, India, and “onshore” personnel, who work in one of TriZetto’s offices or at a TriZetto client site in the U.S. Offshore personnel are typically less experienced and billed to a client at a lower rate, while onshore staffers are generally highly skilled with greater TriZetto product knowledge and can be billed at much higher rates. The typical career progression is for talented offshore personnel who hone their required skills to eventually move onshore. While onshore, personnel have more TriZetto product exposure and client interaction.

Cognizant Acquired TriZetto, Syntel Exercised Its Right To Terminate, And Syntel Began Backing Out Of The Services It Promised To Provide

62. Cognizant has long been one of the leading healthcare IT providers and since its inception has provided excellent client services to its customers. As a result of the changing market, Cognizant sought to acquire a software platform to add to its already industry-leading services, in order to improve its ability to service its customers with one, fully integrated solution.

63. On September 15, 2014, Cognizant and TriZetto announced that Cognizant would acquire TriZetto. The strategic rationale for the deal was to add TriZetto's healthcare software platform to Cognizant's first-in-class technology services in order to create a fully integrated healthcare technology and operations leader. The deal closed in November 2014.

64. After the Cognizant-TriZetto transaction announcement, Syntel Mauritius issued to TriZetto a notice of termination of the MSA. That notice was issued on November 20, 2014, and became effective on February 18, 2015.

65. Issuing the termination notice was Syntel Mauritius's right under the MSA. However, the MSA also obligated Syntel Mauritius to continue to provide to TriZetto Termination Assistance Services "of the same quality, level and performance" for two years. Rather than comply with the MSA, and its promise to provide such services, Syntel opportunistically undertook to sabotage TriZetto and, therefore, Syntel's competitor Cognizant. Syntel began to engage in manipulative, unfair, and unlawful activities to damage TriZetto's business operations, tarnish its reputation with clients, and better position itself vis-à-vis the combined TriZetto and Cognizant.

66. For example, in mid-October 2014, after the Cognizant transaction was announced but before an official notice of termination was delivered, Syntel notified TriZetto that Syntel intended imminently to remove 12 of its most highly skilled onshore staffers then working in TriZetto's Consulting unit and deeply embedded in TriZetto client projects. Syntel was well aware that many of these staffers were critical to TriZetto customer projects that were on the verge of "going live" or approaching other key milestones, and virtually irreplaceable at that point due to their embedded knowledge. The 12 staffers that Syntel wanted to withdraw immediately were 12 of TriZetto's most highly skilled and knowledgeable Syntel staffers, who had been on specific TriZetto client assignments for months. TriZetto vigorously protested their removal and expressed concern for the impact that such an action would have on ongoing client projects. Nevertheless, over TriZetto's vigorous protest, Syntel removed 11 of the 12 staffers on November 24, 2014, and the last of the 12 on December 5, 2014.

67. TriZetto and Syntel both knew that such actions by Syntel would damage TriZetto's ability to service its clients beyond repair. Indeed, Syntel's unilateral removal of staffers from TriZetto in November 2014 disrupted TriZetto's business significantly.

68. Six of the 12 staffers pulled out by Syntel had been working for many months on a FacetsTM software update project for TriZetto client Topaz Shared Services, LLC ("Topaz"), which had an upcoming "go live" deadline of January 1, 2015. These six staffers were among the top Syntel staffers at TriZetto with regard to knowledge of FacetsTM.

69. The replacements that Syntel suggested for these six onshore staffers were offshore staffers who did not have the same FacetsTM familiarity, experience, and depth of skills as the onshore resources that were being removed. Additionally, these staffers lacked the embedded knowledge of the removed resources, and the imminent "go live" left no time to get any such replacement resources up to speed. This lesser training, in addition to their overseas location, meant that they could not fulfill the necessary tasks on the Topaz project.

70. Syntel ultimately withdrew the six personnel from the Topaz project without making any replacements, in violation of its contractual obligations. TriZetto struggled to find replacements to backfill these positions on the Topaz project team. Issues with the shift of Syntel staffers prompted many strong complaints from Topaz. Topaz is an important and high-profile client of TriZetto.

71. Other Syntel personnel were also abruptly removed from other important TriZetto client projects. Although Syntel made some replacements for these projects, they were with individuals who had less training and less project-specific knowledge, once again violating the MSA. Indeed, the quality of services provided by Syntel has diminished significantly since the Cognizant acquisition was announced.

72. Making matters worse, in addition to depriving TriZetto of the personnel to which it is entitled under the MSA, Syntel used the leverage it had over TriZetto and Cognizant to impose new demands on them—above any required by the MSA. In a letter dated December 23, 2014, Syntel asserted that it would only continue to provide services during the Termination Assistance Period if TriZetto agreed to new contractual commitments not set forth in the MSA—namely, (a) that it would pay Syntel approximately $3.4 million in disputed rebates and (b) to amend the MSA so that neither TriZetto nor Cognizant nor their affiliates would hire any recent employee of Syntel Mauritius or its affiliates. By making the latter demand, Syntel conceded that the MSA does not, in fact, bar the hiring of non-Syntel Mauritius employees or apply to Cognizant—which is fatal to its claim on this issue. Further, Syntel's threat that it would effectively “Abandon” the services it was obligated to provide under the MSA constituted a breach of Section 29.21 thereof. TriZetto refused to accede to Syntel’s demands.

73. This pattern of conduct has continued and TriZetto has been forced to scramble existing staffing and hire outside third-party contractors to try to fill the void left by Syntel’s removal of its personnel. Nevertheless, the missed deadlines and client-relations damage cannot be quantified.

Syntel Has Used TriZetto’s Confidential Information, TriZetto Materials, And Registration Works To Compete With Cognizant And TriZetto

74. Upon information and belief, Syntel staffers have downloaded massive amounts of confidential and proprietary TriZetto Materials, including the Registration Works, through an organized effort by Syntel to misappropriate and infringe TriZetto’s confidential and proprietary files in order to effectively compete with Cognizant and TriZetto.

75. TriZetto’s internal Customer Exchange website appears on TriZetto’s intranet and is only available to TriZetto employees, clients, and other third parties—including Syntel staffers—who are working on TriZetto and/or TriZetto customers’ projects.

76. TriZetto’s Customer Exchange contains, among other things, highly technical documentation that enables TriZetto to implement, configure, customize, upgrade and maintain its software, efficiently and precisely, to meet its customers’ needs. This information is confidential and proprietary information, and having access to it could enable Syntel to be a viable competitor for projects involving TriZetto’s products.

77. Under its Terms and Conditions of Use, Customer Exchange users may only access documentation for their own personal use in relation to TriZetto’s business, may not collect any materials other than for internal use, and may not make any of the materials available to any unauthorized third party.

78. Syntel's website contains a listing of "Platform Management Tools." These tools have descriptions that are essentially the same as TriZetto's Intellectual Property listed in paragraph 49, above:

- "D2 Data generator - Dictionary for FACETS database, batches and common interfaces"; and
- "Step-up probe - Multi-format FACETS custom code Impact Analyzer"
- "F - Connect - Inventory of common custom code interfaces for F"
- "Factory - Repository with 3,000+ FACETS test cases and 500+ automation scripts"⁴

79. Upon information and belief, Syntel created these by copying TriZetto's Intellectual Property, and has used, and is using, such copies in connection with its own business. Syntel could not have developed such materials without access to TriZetto Materials and great expense. Further, Syntel could not have developed such materials in time to pitch them to UnitedHealth Group ("UHG"), a major client of both TriZetto and Cognizant, unless Syntel engaged in massive verbatim, or nearly verbatim copying from TriZetto and TriZetto's Intellectual Property, including the Registration Works. Syntel could not have developed its product offerings without decompiling, disassembling, or reverse engineering TriZetto Materials in violation of the MSA.

81. Additionally, close to 1,500 downloads were completed by Syntel staffers of approximately 500 unique confidential documents between September 2014 and February 2015.

82. The downloaded documents contain highly sensitive materials. For example:

- The Facets™ Data Models Guide contains a complete set of data and codes for the underlying diagrams in Facets™—TriZetto's core proprietary software product—which is used to configure Facets™ for specific client needs and create customized data reports, as well as the basic architecture for Facets™, including a virtual representation of the database.
- The Claims Processing User Guide provides steps and illustrations of Facets™ claims processing functionality for hospital and medical claims, including detailed descriptions of the claims adjudication process, batch processing, system overrides, archiving, and software security issues.
- Facets™ Systems Administration User Guide specifies the parameters for configuring different Facets™ customizations and includes instructions on establishing users, setting up attachments, defining security settings, establishing auto numbering and masking personal identifiers.

83. For all three types of documentation above, versions 4.71 through 5.20 were downloaded.

84. Many of the Syntel staffers who have been pulled from TriZetto projects downloaded massive amounts of these critical files in the days leading up to their departure—and for some, their absolute last day.

85. For instance, one Syntel staffer who later left TriZetto downloaded 79 files on September 18, 2014—the day that a Syntel-wide meeting is believed to have taken place at TriZetto's office—between 6:54 a.m. and 7:07 a.m.

86. Another Syntel staffer who left TriZetto on November 7, 2014 downloaded 49 files on November 6, 2014 between 3:12 p.m. and 3:20 p.m.

87. Three of the 12 aforementioned Syntel staffers who were abruptly pulled from Consulting projects collectively downloaded at least 126 TriZetto files in the days leading up to their November 24, 2014 departure. Specifically, one Syntel staffer who worked on the Topaz project downloaded 26 files on November 23—the day before his last day at TriZetto—all between 6:39 p.m. and 6:56 p.m. Another Syntel staffer who worked on a different Consulting project downloaded 89 files on November 24—his last day—all between 1:36 a.m. and 2:58 a.m.

88. In all of the cases detailed above, the downloaded files were by and large related to Facets™ implementation.

89. Additionally, in the days leading up to their departures from TriZetto, numerous Syntel staffers forwarded TriZetto's confidential and proprietary information from their TriZetto email accounts to their own personal and Syntel email addresses. Upon information and belief, there is no legitimate explanation for this forwarding activity.

90. Upon information and belief, Syntel has downloaded and used TriZetto Materials, including files from Customer Exchange and PVCS such as the Registration Works to pitch for other consulting jobs on TriZetto's products—reviewing TriZetto confidential materials to prepare to bid against Cognizant and TriZetto.

91. Upon information and belief, in late November 2014, several Syntel staffers gathered in a conference room in TriZetto's Denver office to strategize for the pursuit of other consulting jobs outside TriZetto and to use Customer Exchange materials to prepare for a pitch at UHG.

92. Upon information and belief, a Syntel staffer called in sick to his TriZetto project for an entire week in early December 2014 and attended a pitch on Syntel's behalf for a Facets™ upgrade project at UHG. Cognizant was bidding for the same UHG project.

93. Upon information and belief, Syntel won the UHG bid by extolling Syntel staffers' training and familiarity with TriZetto's Facets™ product—which had been acquired while Syntel was being paid by TriZetto under the MSA—and significantly under-bidding Cognizant.

94. Upon information and belief, Syntel has now sent several of the highly skilled staffers with intimate knowledge of TriZetto's confidential information who it had pulled from TriZetto's Topaz project in November to work on this new UHG project.

95. Upon information and belief, the prospect of the UHG and other client engagements is precisely the reason that Syntel so abruptly withdrew key staffers from TriZetto.

96. Upon information and belief, Syntel also abused its relationships with mutual customers of Syntel and TriZetto, and used those relationships to improperly gain access to TriZetto Materials, and to improperly copy, distribute, modify, and use for its own benefit, including in knowing violation of the agreements between, on the one hand, Syntel or the third party, and, on the other hand, TriZetto.

97. Many established clients have begun demanding that Cognizant and TriZetto make concessions, or the clients would pursue other options. Upon information and belief, this has occurred because Syntel had pitched these clients, emphasizing in particular its staffers' experience with one of TriZetto's core products, Facets™, which they had obtained through their work at TriZetto, and offering to charge less than TriZetto to have those staffers work on Facets™ projects. More importantly, Syntel's conduct has put additional downward pressure on the revenue that Cognizant and TriZetto can obtain for their services and intellectual property because Syntel regularly touts and uses the confidential information and intellectual property that it wrongly obtained from TriZetto.

98. Upon information and belief, at least one of the Syntel staffers who was pulled off a TriZetto project has been assigned by Syntel to HealthEdge, another of TriZetto's competitors, and has been tasked with developing a competing product to Facets™.

Syntel Engaged In A Harassment Campaign Against Cognizant's
New Or Soon-To-Be Employees

99. To mitigate its losses from Syntel's actions, Cognizant has been forced to hire certain ex-Syntel staffers as backfill on the TriZetto client work that Syntel has abandoned. Upon information and belief, none of the staffers that Cognizant has hired have been employees of Syntel Mauritius.

100. Upon information and belief, Syntel has reacted by bullying its current and former staff and spreading misinformation.

101. Upon information and belief, Syntel sent its staffers threatening letters incorrectly claiming that the staffers are not allowed to join Cognizant, and that Cognizant has a contractual obligation not to hire Syntel employees. Cognizant has no contractual restriction against hiring employees from any Syntel entity, much less Syntel Mauritius. These letters were therefore false and misleading.

102. Upon information and belief, Syntel has forced staffers in India who have resigned to attend meetings during their mandatory "notice period" between resignation and date of departure. Syntel has used these meetings to intimidate the staffers and coerce them away from joining Cognizant.

103. In its most aggressive maneuver to date, Syntel has published advertisements in Indian newspapers containing “mug-shot”-type pictures of ex-Syntel staff who have departed for Cognizant. Upon information and belief, these advertisements are blatant (and successful) efforts to cause unwanted attention, shame and fear for these individuals.

104. Many of the Syntel staffers are now apprehensive to join Cognizant because of the punitive steps that Syntel has taken.

105. Syntel itself, however, has solicited TriZetto employees to work for Syntel.

COUNT I – BREACH OF CONTRACT
(ON BEHALF OF TRIZETTO AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS)

106. TriZetto repeats and re-alleges the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–105 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

110. Syntel Mauritius has engaged in numerous breaches of the Terms and Conditions of Customer Exchange, which prohibited it from collecting materials other than for internal use, and from making such materials available to any unauthorized third party.

111. As a result of Syntel Mauritius’s breach, TriZetto has suffered direct and consequential damages, and is entitled to recover compensatory damages, including opportunity costs and punitive damages in an amount to be proven at trial, as confirmed by, inter alia, section 27 of the MSA .

112. As a direct and proximate result of Syntel's wrongful conduct, TriZetto has been substantially and irreparably harmed in an amount not readily capable of determination. Unless restrained by this Court, Syntel will cause further irreparable injury to TriZetto.

113. TriZetto is entitled to injunctive relief enjoining Syntel, its agents and employees, and all persons acting in concert or participation with it, from engaging in any further use of TriZetto's Confidential Information, as that term is defined in the MSA, as confirmed by, inter alia, section 22.06 of the MSA.

COUNT II – BREACH OF IMPLIED COVENANT OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING
(ON BEHALF OF TRIZETTO AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS)

114. TriZetto repeats and re-alleges the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–113 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

115. The actions of Syntel Mauritius, as set forth herein, constitute a breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing.

116. Syntel Mauritius improperly deprived TriZetto of its right to receive the benefits under the MSA.

117. As a result of Syntel Mauritius's breach, TriZetto has suffered direct and consequential damages, and is entitled to recover compensatory damages, including opportunity costs and punitive damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

COUNT III – NEW YORK MISAPPROPRIATION (ON BEHALF OF TRIZETTO
AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS AND SYNTEL, INC.)

118. TriZetto repeats and re-alleges the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–117 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

119. The actions of Syntel, as set forth herein, constitute misappropriation under New York law.

120. TriZetto possessed confidential information, which constitute trade secrets and proprietary confidential information continuously used in the operation of TriZetto's business under New York law.

121. Such information was developed through great effort and expense in terms of manpower, time, and costs.

122. Such information is extremely valuable to TriZetto, crucial to the operation of TriZetto's business, and, if available to others, would enable them to compete with TriZetto to TriZetto's detriment.

123. TriZetto took reasonable measures to maintain the secrecy and confidentiality of such information, including by limiting access to repositories of confidential and proprietary TriZetto Materials, including Customer Exchange and PVCS, and by requiring contracts that prohibited, among other things, unauthorized access, uses, disclosure, and reverse engineering. Such information cannot be properly acquired or duplicated because of the limited number of individuals who can access the information, and the contractual limitations imposed on such individuals.

124. Syntel was subject to such agreements and had a duty to maintain confidentiality and not to use for its own purposes the materials that it had access to pursuant to its relationship with TriZetto.

125. On information and belief, Syntel was aware that it acquired information from third parties who also had a duty to maintain confidentiality and not to use for their own purposes the materials that they had access to pursuant to their relationships with TriZetto.

126. Syntel knowingly and improperly obtained, used, and disclosed such trade secrets and confidential information in violation of its duties, including but not limited to those provided in the MSA, and the duties of third parties.

127. As a result of Syntel's actions, TriZetto has suffered direct and consequential damages, and is entitled to recover compensatory damages, including opportunity costs and punitive damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

128. As a direct and proximate result of Syntel's wrongful conduct, TriZetto has been substantially and irreparably harmed in an amount not readily capable of determination. Unless restrained by this Court, Syntel will cause further irreparable injury to TriZetto.

129. TriZetto is entitled to injunctive relief enjoining Syntel, its agents and employees, and all persons acting in concert or participation with it, from engaging in any further use of TriZetto's proprietary and confidential information.

COUNT IV – FEDERAL MISAPPROPRIATION OF TRADE SECRETS (ON BEHALF OF TRIZETTO
AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS AND SYNTEL, INC.)

130. TriZetto repeats and re-alleges the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–129 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

131. The actions of Syntel, as set forth herein, constitute misappropriation under the Defend Trade Secrets Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1839.

132. TriZetto possessed confidential information, including financial, business, and technical information such as compilations, program devices, methods, techniques, processes, procedures, programs, and codes, which constitute trade secrets.

133. Such information is used in connection with TriZetto's products and services, which are offered across the country and throughout the world.

134. TriZetto took reasonable measures to maintain the secrecy and confidentiality of such information, including by limiting access to Customer Exchange, PVCS, and by requiring contracts that prohibited, among other things, unauthorized access, uses, disclosure, and reverse engineering. Such information cannot be properly acquired or duplicated because of the limited number of individuals who can access the information, and the contractual limitations imposed on such individuals.

135. Syntel was subject to such agreements and had a duty to maintain confidentiality and not to use for its own purposes the materials that it had access to pursuant to its relationship with TriZetto.

136. Such information derives independent economic value from not being generally known to, and not being readily ascertainable through proper means by others because such information is extremely valuable to TriZetto, crucial to the operation of TriZetto's business, and, if available to others, would enable them to compete with TriZetto to TriZetto's detriment.

137. Syntel knowingly and improperly obtained, used, and disclosed such trade secrets and confidential information in violation of its own duties, including but not limited to those provided in the MSA, and the duties of third parties. Syntel continues to do so by converting TriZetto Materials into business assets for Syntel, and by creating and using Platform Management Tools that directly compete with TriZetto's.

138. Syntel was aware that it acquired TriZetto Materials from third parties who also had a duty to maintain confidentiality and not to use for their own purposes the materials that they had access to pursuant to their relationships with TriZetto.

139. As such, Syntel used improper means to acquire knowledge of the TriZetto materials, and, at the time of its disclosure and use knew or had reason to know that the trade secret was derived from someone who acquired it by improper means, acquired subject to a duty to maintain secrecy or limit use, or derived from a person who owed such a duty.

140. Syntel's conduct constitutes knowing, willful, and malicious misappropriation.

141. As a direct and proximate result of Syntel's wrongful conduct, TriZetto has been substantially and irreparably harmed in an amount not readily capable of determination. Unless restrained by this Court, Syntel will cause further irreparable injury to TriZetto.

142. TriZetto is entitled to injunctive relief enjoining Syntel, its agents and employees, and all persons acting in concert or participation with it, from engaging in any further use of TriZetto's proprietary and confidential information.

143. As a result of Syntel's actions, TriZetto has suffered direct and consequential damages, and is entitled to recover compensatory damages, including opportunity costs and enhanced damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS AND SYNTEL, INC.)

144. TriZetto and Cognizant repeat and re-allege the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–143 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

145. The actions of Syntel, as set forth herein, constitute unfair competition.

146. Syntel copied or misappropriated TriZetto and Cognizant's products and operations by obtaining access to them through fraud or deception, and/or an abuse of a confidential relationship.

147. Syntel's use of copied or misappropriated TriZetto and Cognizant material confused the public, including members of the healthcare and technology industries, as to whether Syntel, TriZetto, or Cognizant was the source of that material.

148. As a result of Syntel's actions, TriZetto and Cognizant have suffered direct and consequential damages, including in the form of actual, economic harm to their businesses, and are entitled to recover compensatory damages, including opportunity costs and punitive damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

149. As a direct and proximate result of Syntel's wrongful conduct, TriZetto has been substantially and irreparably harmed in an amount not readily capable of determination. Unless restrained by this Court, Syntel will cause further irreparable injury to TriZetto.

150. TriZetto is entitled to injunctive relief enjoining Syntel, its agents and employees, and all persons acting in concert or participation with it, from engaging in any further use of TriZetto's proprietary and confidential information.

PROSPECTIVE BUSINESS RELATIONS
(ON BEHALF OF TRIZETTO AND COGNIZANT AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS AND SYNTEL, INC.)

151. TriZetto and Cognizant repeat and re-allege the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–150 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

152. The actions of Syntel, as set forth herein, constitute tortious interference with prospective business relations.

153. TriZetto and Cognizant reasonably expected to obtain economic advantages from relationships with clients.

154. Syntel intentionally and improperly interfered with TriZetto and Cognizant's relationships with clients, preventing TriZetto and Cognizant from forming contracts with those clients.

155. Syntel used wrongful means and acted with the sole purpose of harming TriZetto and Cognizant.

156. Syntel's malicious interference with TriZetto and Cognizant's client relationships prevented TriZetto and Cognizant from obtaining economic advantages through those relationships.

157. As a result of Syntel's actions, TriZetto and Cognizant have suffered direct and consequential damages, and are entitled to recover compensatory damages, including opportunity costs and punitive damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

COUNT VII – COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT (ON BEHALF OF TRIZETTO AGAINST SYNTEL MAURITIUS AND SYNTEL, INC.)

158. TriZetto and Cognizant repeat and re-allege the allegations of the preceding Paragraphs 1–157 of these counterclaims as if fully set forth herein.

159. The actions of Syntel, as set forth herein, constitute copyright infringement under 17 U.S.C. § 101 et. seq.

160. The Registration Works are original, creative works and copyrightable subject matter under the laws of the United States.

161. TriZetto is the owner of valid and subsisting copyrights in the Registration Works.

162. TriZetto has complied in all respects with 17 U.S.C. §§ 101, et seq., and has secured the exclusive rights and privileges in and to the Registration Works.

163. By its actions alleged herein, Syntel has infringed and will continue to infringe TriZetto's copyrights in and relating to the Registration Works by, inter alia, reproducing them, distributing them, creating derivative works based on them, and reproducing and distributing copies of those derivative works, without any authorization or other permission from TriZetto.

164. On information and belief, Syntel has infringed numerous other copyrightable works that belong to TriZetto and reserves the right to amend these counterclaims upon identification of such works and infringing uses.

165. Syntel's infringement of TriZetto's copyrights has been deliberate, willful and in utter disregard of TriZetto's rights for which TriZetto has no adequate remedy at law.

166. Upon information and belief, as a direct and proximate result of its wrongful conduct, Syntel has obtained benefits to which Syntel is not entitled.

167. As a direct and proximate result of Syntel's wrongful conduct, TriZetto has been substantially and irreparably harmed in an amount not readily capable of determination. Unless restrained by this Court, Syntel will cause further irreparable injury to TriZetto.

168. TriZetto is entitled to injunctive relief enjoining Syntel, its agents and employees, and all persons acting in concert or participation with it, from engaging in any further infringement of TriZetto's Registration Works.

169. TriZetto is further entitled to recover from Syntel the damages it has sustained and will sustain, and any gains, profits and advantages obtained by Syntel as a result of its acts of infringement as alleged above. At present, the amount of such damages, gains, profits and advantages cannot be fully ascertained by TriZetto, but will be established according to proof at trial.
